Strange But True – No. 161 in an occasional series

I had occasion to tell the following joke in a sermon recently:

Q: What was purple and conquered the known world?

A: Alexander the Grape!

You see why I don't make a habit of joke-telling. However this brings to mind other connections between rulers and fruit. James I was a "strange fruit" himself, of course. Charles II was enticed by Nell Gwynne's oranges and poor George III was nutty as a fruitcake – but there's more. Some monarchs have even looked like fruit. Honestly. They really have.

William IV, who reigned for about 7 years between the last of the Georges and his niece, Queen Victoria, had a somewhat egg-shaped head surmounted by a prominent tuft of hair. It was one of his disgruntled ministers, I think, who remarked, "What can you expect from a monarch with a head like a pineapple?" William was good-natured enough that if he'd known what was said about his appearance he'd probably have laughed.

Not so his contemporary, Louis-Philippe of France. He had toppled Charles X from the throne in a coup and was known as the "Citizen King" but he was mighty protective of his own dignity. He was of most undistinguished appearance. He had a somewhat bulbous forehead, very fat jowls and virtually no neck. His head was surmounted by a pile of curls and his face framed by great mutton-chop whiskers. In late 1830 an unknown artist called Charles Philipon launched a satirical magazine, La Caricature, in which he represented the head of the king as a pear – his hair and whiskers being transformed into stalk and leaves. The fact that at the time the French word poire also meant "fathead" or "mug" added to the depth of the cheek involved. Louis-Philippe was beside himself with rage and the cartoonist was charged with having "caused offence to the person of the king".

Philipon made a farce of his trial by suggesting that the authorities should arrest anything that was pear-shaped and might offend the sovereign – and that they should begin by tackling the orchards of France! He was given six months in prison for his nerve. When released, he repeated the joke in another magazine Le Charivari and went straight back to prison. In all, he spent two years in a cell for representing the head of state as a piece of fruit!

Serves him right. He was rotten to the core.

Flower Festival 2014

For some it was “well planned and beautiful” for others, it was “very moving”, most found it “thought provoking” and one or two kindly wrote “it was the best they had ever seen” It certainly was a high quality flower festival due to the hard work and dedication of the “team” that made it happen. A very large thank you to you ALL, whether you “arranged” “tidied” “advertised” “served refreshments” “stewarded”- you know who you are. Special thanks to Mrs Bel Kerr and Mr Phil Goodwin for the dedicated organ playing, much appreciated as always by our visitors. Despite the sometimes awful weather, we made £2376 gross (costs have yet to be taken out) and gave many people a memorable time in our lovely church. Thank you one and all. There will be a Meeting for the core group of “Flower Arrangers” after Evensong on 20th July, with another meeting for the wider group to be arranged at a later date.

Sarah Lacey

A big thank you to Hartington and the Heroes of L'Eroica

On Sunday the 22nd of June, after much planning and hard work, Hartington welcomed the riders of the inaugural L'Eroica Britannia vintage cycle ride. The sun was shining, the skies were blue and there was buzz about the village that put a smile on everyone's face as 1300 cyclists rode into the centre of Hartington to enjoy locally produced food and drink. They propped their bikes up around the pond and took a well-earned break from the saddle to enjoy all the best that Hartington had to offer.

The ‘Green Garters’ from Ripley began the days entertainment with several sets of Morris dancing, the ‘Dale End Duo’ provided a musical interlude for us in the middle of the day and proceedings were closed by the fabulous ‘Aprille and the Showers’ with bluegrass and jazz in the garden of the cheese shop. The day came to end in some style!

The organisers of the main event couldn't have been more pleased with the atmosphere of the Hartington food stop, and the feedback received from riders that had come from around the world was nothing but positive and full of praise for our wonderful village. All the effort had been well worth it!

The organising committee would like to thank everyone who helped make this event such a success, from Alan, Jill and the Scouts who helped all day filling water bottles and serving food, to Kate and Richard who let us use their electric, to Brad who helped transport chairs and tables first thing in the morning and last thing in the afternoon and to June, Carol and Ivor who all mucked in and helped out just when we needed you. Thanks also need to go to Joanne for some tireless work on Saturday afternoon preparing sandwiches and to Hartdale Motors who allowed competitors to park their bikes at the garage. Thank you too to all the families of the organisers as well as those who helped butter cobs, set up gazebos and help out with the donkey work.

Thank you also to the residents of Hartington for being patient with the holdups and disruption caused on the day.

So thank you to everyone who contributed so much to making this “heroic” event such fun and for creating such a great atmosphere in Hartington. Can't wait for next year....

Hartington Cheese Shop

Claire Milner from the Old Cheese Shop in Hartington was one of a group of very privileged people invited to present the Queen with a hamper made up of the best Derbyshire produce available on her recent visit to Chatsworth.

A large piece of Hartington Creamery's very own Peakland Blue took pride of place in the hamper which was packed with other goodies such as Holdsworth Chocolates, beers from Thornbridge and Peak Ales, Rapeseed Oil from Ashford in the Water, Bakewell Pudding etc.

The Queen was very pleased with the hamper and it was whisked away with in her helicopter to Windsor Castle for her and the Duke of Edinburgh to enjoy.

More exciting news on the cheese front.....

The first batch of stilton will be ready in the next two weeks. The first stilton will be presented to the Duke of Devonshire and it will then be on sale in the Old Cheese Shop in Hartington. It has taken a long time, money and effort to produce the famous blue cheese but thanks to the team at Hartington Creamery and all their family and friends for support it is finally coming!

Orders are flooding in already and much of the cheese will be winging its way to the USA. The Americans obviously have good taste.

The Creamery is only the seventh company in the world to hold the coveted license to produce this fabulous cheese and it is the only company in Derbyshire able to make stilton. All the team are very proud to bring cheese making back to the Parish of Hartington and Derbyshire.

Village Planters

This initiative was first implemented in 2012 as part of the village Jubilee celebrations, financially supported by Parish Council and Hartington Community Group(HCG). Janet will be the first to say that it is a team effort and wanted recording the thanks to the following- Winter storage and “putting out/away”- Alan and Stuart Grindey; Lesley Veit and Lesley Birch for the growing on of plants; Tim Mollatt for the care of the planter at the Garage- Kate Craven- the Stanner; Jennie Dullage by the Pump seat; Morson at Nettletor and Linda Wright “ up the Dale”. ### Biggin WI

In April several members attended the group meeting at Burbage where they enjoyed Sally Moselys' picturesque journey through Chatsworth, Haddon and all the beautiful villages and valleys in between, after which members enjoyed supper and took part in a very amusing quiz. Members were reminded of the WI Centenary Baton Relay which was expected to reach Buxton in Thursday 19th June at approximately 4pm where it would be welcomed by the Billarettes. In May, Nancy Hawksworth (formerly Bonsall) entertained members with another of her inimitable Cookery Demonstrations. We are lucky she is willing to travel so far to her home village to entertain us. In June members enjoyed an evening walk around Tideswell, followed by refreshments at a convenient hostelry.
